SSL-Encryption

This site uses a SSL-encryption for reasons of security and as a protection of transmitted personal data like the requests you send to us. An encrypted connection can easily be identified by looking at the address bar of your browser. The "http://" changes into "https://" and a lock symbol in your browser bar is now visible. While SSL-encryption is activated, the data you send to us cannot be read along by third parties.

Objection regarding spam or promotional mails

We hereby explicitly object to the third party use of contact data, which has been published under obligation of an imprint, in order to send advertising and information that is not explicitly requested. In case of unrequested advertising information, like spam mail, the site owner reserves the right to take legal actions.

Social networks and other providers

The telemedia act of malstrom-music.com entails content of third parties. These are for example so called “social plugins” of social networks like Facebook and Twitter. These plugins are important for the distribution of content and are established in the world of media. Malstrom-music.com integrates functionalities and content of other networks (e.g. Instagram, Soundcloud or YouTube).

Malstrom-music.com uses these services of other providers to actively help shape the development of media and to provide you content in the best possible way.

While visiting malstrom-music.com, your IP-address and other technical information regarding your device like screen resolution, used browser and used operating system are being registered. The provider of the plugin or the code also receives this information. From this data the provider basically cannot draw inferences about your person but he knows for example where you are (geographically). Furthermore the provider can save cookies on your device to protocol your individual surfing patterns and to identify your type of device you are surfing on. If you are logged in on a social network while you are using the site of malstrom-music.com, the provider can furthermore match your individual surfing patterns to your logged in profile. Platformcologie.com itself does not get any information how you use the social plugins or which content you share or comment on. The data exchange happens in this case only between you and the social networks respectively their providers.
